

RE Must Knows

Year 5

5.1 Special places can mean different things to different people. Religious people have religious buildings and sites that they find special eg. Makkah for Muslims, The Western Wall for Jewish and Christian people. Non-religious people also have special places, this can be their home or somewhere that they enjoy visiting.

5.2 Everyone has a code for living. It is when your head or your heart tells you the what the right thing to do is. Some people believe in religious codes for living, for example the Ten Commandments in Christianity or the Five Pillars of Islam. They are both quite similar in their values in that they tell people to treat everyone and everything the way that you wish to be treat yourself.

5.3 Forgiveness is the act of accepting that someone is sorry. Reconciliation can mean that you are going back to being friendly with someone. Reconciliation in religion can be seen as asking God for forgiveness if you have not followed your code for living.

5.4 The bible has stories that show that people have always had a covenant with God. A covenant is an agreement between people, so Christians have a covenant with God.
